Notes of Hungary

Throughout history, Hungarian soil has yielded a diverse and rich harvest of grapes, giving the terroir a most unique tradition of viticulture.

The wines of the region remain much sought-after due to the vineyards' size, but that physical limitation doesn't in any way curb the burgeoning talent of our vintners and the complexity of their wines.

ÉS Bisztró's imperially inspired Hungarian-Viennese cuisine embraces the region's wine culture, and ÉS Bisztró is proud to encourage local vintners that use specific farming methods such as biodynamic and organic.

Biodynamic winemaking uses a sophisticated system of herbal sprays and composting techniques, known as "preparations", driven by the moon calendar. By contrast, organic wine is made from grapes grown without chemicals.
